

the pleasure project.

because sex education is rarely sexy and erotica is rarely safe can safer sex be... sexy?

the global mapping of pleasure

A directory of organizations, programmes, media and people who eroticize safer sex, 2nd edition

Now in its second edition, this unique and practical resource shows you how organizations and people around the world are promoting safer sex in ways that are relevant to people's real sex lives and desires, including examples of:

- Steamy safer-sex porn
- Sexy safer-sex info for gay men, teens, married couples and everyone else
- Erotic condom promotion in diverse settings
- Pleasure economics for sex workers
- Sex-positive work with church groups
- And much, much more

Also includes tips for sex educators and health professionals - from how to deal with the subjectivity of pleasure and desire in programme design, to getting creative with condom promotion, to the crucial importance of telling people how to do it.

The Global Mapping of Pleasure is for anyone who wants to take a more sex-positive approach to sexual health and HIV prevention.
